DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claim 3 is objected to because of the following informalities: Claim 3, line 3, a comma should be inserted after the word "position". Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Katsuyama (US 2001/0033758) in view of Schlageter et al. (US 2004/0037591) and Beaufort et al. (US 5,594,535).

Regarding Claims 1, 8-9, 13-14, 15, and 16, Katsuyama discloses (Figure 2) a container holding device, a conveying device, and image forming apparatus, comprising: a container holding member (50) for holding a container (20) that can be detachably attached to the container holding member (50), wherein the container includes a soft, tapered, bad shaped member, including fold lines, that stores contents, and shrinks as external pressure is applied or internal pressure reduces (paragraph 38).

Katsuyama differs from the instant claimed invention in not disclosing: the container holding member capable of moving between a first position that is a position at which the container is attached to or detached from the container holding member and a second position that is a position at which the contents of the container can be discharged, wherein a moving unit moves the container holding member between the first and second positions; an external pressurizing unit that applies pressure to the bag shaped member; and an external pressurizing unit to apply a lower pressure to the bag-shaped member when the container holding member is at a first position than when the container holding member is at the second position.

Schlageter et al. disclose (Abstract; Figures 7 and 8) container holding member (60) capable of moving between a first position that is a position at which the container is attached to or detached from the container holding member and a second position that is a position at which the contents of the container can be discharged, wherein a moving unit (62) moves the container holding member between the first and second positions.

Beaufort et al. disclose (Figures 3 and 4) an external pressurizing unit (90) that applies pressure to a bag shaped member (85; col. 4, lines 14-25).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to employ a movable container holding member as disclosed by Schlageter et al., with the disclosure of Katsuyama, for the benefit of a toner refill container capable of simple handling (Schlageter; paragraph 11).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to employ the external pressurizing unit as disclosed by Beaufort, with the disclosure of Katsuyama, for the benefit providing force to a flexible member such that the flexible member collapses as toner is consumed (Beaufort et al.; col.; 4, lines 14-25).

Additionally, It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to apply a lower pressure to the bag-shaped toner container during removal of toner container, since, as disclosed by Katsuyama '758, it is known that pressure applied to a flexible toner container in a collapsing direction during removal can cause toner to fly out of the toner container (Katsuyama '758; paragraph 5).

Additionally, regarding Claims 2-7, 10-12, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to provide an apparatus that decreases pressure to a bag shaped toner container member during removal of the toner container.

Conclusion

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure:

Matsumoto et al. (US 7,065,313) disclose a regulating device that regulates the shape of a developer container when the volume of the developer container decreases
